JEWISH COLONIZATION IN RUSSIA

The proposal of the Joint Distribution Committee to raise fifteen million dollars in the near future for the purpose of settling Jewish families on the soil of southern Russia has aroused a great deal of heated discussion in this country. Jewish leaders of different groups are not altogether ready to accept this project without knowing further about it. Prominent among the opponents of the whole plan are the Zionists, who maintain that if colonization offers a remedy to the ills of Russian Jewry, the objective ought to be Palestine and not Crimea.

In order to clear up the variety of questions and doubts, which have arisen in connection with the whole colonization scheme in Russia, the Joint Distribution Committee gave a luncheon last week to a number of representatives of the Jewish press in New York City. At this function Mr. David A. Brown related his experiences in Russia during his recent visit and his reasons why American Jewry ought to come out wholeheartedly in favour of the project. However, it seems that neither Mr. Brown nor the other speakers at the luncheon succeeded in convincing the opponents of the plant to change their point of view. Mr. Leon Kamaiky, publisher of the Jewish Daily News and prominent relief worker during the war days and after in Orthodox circles, suggested that before anything is done a commission should be sent to Russia to study the situation at length on the spot and then present an authoritative report to American Jewry. We confess that we were very happy to read Mr. Kamaiky's suggestion, since we have made a similar proposal in a recent issue of this journal. We know and admire Mr. Brown's sincerity and devotion to the Jewish cause; we have perfect faith in the veracity of the reports about Russian Jewry which have been prepared by the salaried representatives of the Joint Distribution Committee overseas. Nevertheless we feel that large numbers of American Jews will not deem it a business-like procedure to launch a drive for many millions of dollars upon the recommendation of two or three people, no matter how important they may be. A commission of thoroughly representative Jews, recruited from the ranks of all groups and factions of our people in America, who would go to Russia and come back and tell us just what they had seen and heard, would therefore put a stop to the multitudinous objections which have been raised against the Crimean colonization plan.

To our surprise, however, Mr. Brown informed Mr. Kamaiky that the Soviet government of Moscow would not admit such a commission to Russia. Just why such a step on the part of American Jewry would prove offensive to the Kremlin, we do not know, and we wish to say that to us this represents a bit of strange information. Mr. Brown told his audience at the luncheon that, as a sign of its genuine interest in the colonization project, the Soviet government is willing to contribute two hundred dollars towards the settling of every Jewish family on its chosen soil. What possible objection then can the Soviet government have against a friendly commission which, upon its return from Russia, would aid in the raising of funds to be spent in that country? We believe that we are presenting the facts as they are when we say that the entire colonization project in Russia is still not very clear, and that the heads of the Joint Distribution Committee will have to do a great deal of explaining if American Jewry is to respond wholeheartedly to the proposed appeal for fifteen million dollars.—The Chicago Sentinel.

ANTI-SEMITISM IN ENGLAND

The recent conviction of General Prescott Decie, president of the Loyalty League of England, a sort of counterpart to our own K.K.K., shows that our cousins across the sea are still suffering from the effects of the agitation of 1920, when the London Times and Morning Post lent their hitherto dignified columns to the publications of the balderdash which went under the names of "The Jewish Peril" and "The Cause of World Unrest," both inspired by a nativistic organization known as The Britons. These newspapers have since been silent on the dreadful conspiracy of World Jewry, about which they pretended to be so much concerned; but, the devil's dance which they started has been going on apace.

Indeed, Norman Hapgood, who is now in London, writing of anti-Semitism in England, thinks that it is only beginning. He says:

"So far, it is only in the atmosphere; but it has assumed such proportions that it might, at any moment, affect some action of the Government, as, for instance, if there should be a difficult choice to make in Palestine."

Our own view, however, is that anti-Semitism in England is on the wane. Several of its most prominent leaders and spokesmen have been disgracefully worsted in legal battles, and the movement for "Britain for the Britons" is still surviving only by the grace of much unemployment and high taxes.—The Jewish Tribune.

WHAT NEXT?

According to reliable information, Secretary of Labor Davis is framing an amendment to the immigration law which will make imported contract labour legal. Such a complete turn-about-face seems almost unbelievable. The opposition to contract labour has become a tradition in American life. Every attempt in the past to introduce it met with the opposition of all who abhorred peonage and those who have urged the maintenance of the high standard of living which has been the boast of America since the establishment of the country.

The immigration legislation is proving the truth of the adage that one compromise brings a whole brood in its train. The discriminating immigration law which favoured some Europeans as against others violated a cardinal principle underlying the American scheme. When we passed this piece of legislation anyone could foresee the consequences, especially the shortage of European unskilled labour which has been the basis of American industry. The country decided upon exclusion of coolie labourers, leaving the only source of supply the countries which have borne the brunt of discrimination with the net result that now we are faced with enacting another piece of iniquitous legislation to cure the blunder of the first.

If this new bill should pass, we shall introduce into America a new individual with a status heretofore unknown and hardly conceived. They will not be quota immigrants with the rights, privileges, duties and obligations of prospective citizens. They will be in a category apart, subject to the special regulations made by the Immigration Department, not to mention the restrictions which the fears and suspicions of the large vested interests may invent.

Community Centre for Jewish Blind

New York.—At the Community Centre of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind, at No. 172 East Ninety-sixth Street, 1,500 registered blind persons are being given an opportunity to play, study and earn their living in spite of their great handicap.

This is said to be the first institution conducted in this city on what are called "normal" lines. That is, the blind people are so guided in their lives that they are able to play, work and study just as persons with sight do. Reading perhaps, provides the only sharp contrast. Since they cannot see, they are instructed in the Braille or "touch" system of reading with their fingers. Otherwise they are being taught to be self-supporting in all their activities and to compete on an even basis with the "sighted world."

Five years ago the Guild for the Jewish Blind established the Community Centre at No. 105 East 105th Street, to cater to the recreational educational and vocational needs of the blind. It had and still has a non-sectarian purpose in view. Persons of all creeds and colours are welcomed to the centre and aid given them.

The work of the centre at the 105th Street address became so extensive it was necessary to expand, so the Guild purchased the building occupied at the present address in East Ninety-sixth Street.

The centre is not a relief centre in the usual sense of the word. The blind are not made objects of charity. No one there acts on the assumption that their lives are dark and cheerless. The blind do not go there seeking pity but opportunity.

The work of the centre is divided itno three phases of endeavour for the blind. Vocational work is the most important since it is the basis for all the opportunities provided the blind to make their living. They are taught to do such things as textile weaving, manufacture of human hair goods, doll wigs and cobbling.

According to Mrs. Morris Marx, Executive Secretary of the centre, the looms used in the weaving are specially constructed. The men and women weavers are so equipped that they are able to compete with sighted persons. For the work they do at the centre they are paid what amounts to eighty-five per cent. of a sighted person's pay. Their goods are purchased by leading department stores in the city.

Blind men studying cobbling are enabled to establish their own shops. Already the centre has made it possible for a score of blind cobblers to be set up in business, aided by their wives and other relatives.

In the field of education, blind pupils are taught, besides Braille instruction, vocal and instrumental music, radio operation, English and cooking.

For recreation they are provided with band concerts, community singing, dancing and gymnasium exercises. At the centre a band of twelve blind musicians has been organized, as well as an orchestra of twenty, dramatic clubs, a nature study club, bowling clubs.

Mrs. Marx is assisted at the home by Mrs. Sara Wolff and Miss Margaret Schloeman. The officers of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind are Henry K. Keyman, President; Esher H. Ryttenberg, Vice-President; Benjamin M. Friend, Treasurer; Beatrice Lang, Recording Secretary; Maude E. Wiolsn, Corresponding Secretary; and Max Meyer, Financial Secretary.

MAX HIRSCH, WELL-KNOWN THEATRICAL MAN, DIES

New York.—Max Hirsch, former treasurer of the Metropolitan Opera House for twenty-seven years, and for the last three years road manager of the Music Box Revue, died from heart disease last Friday while aboard the Captain Joe, a fishing vessel anchored in Sheepshead Bay a few miles off the shore. Mr. Hirsch gave no evidence of discomfort before the attack and was chatting gayly with his twelve passenger-companions and the captain of the vessel when suddenly he clutched at his breast and crumpled to the floor of the boat unconscious. By the time Captain Archie Buckner had moored his vessel at the Town of Sheepshead Bay, Mr. Hirsch was dead.

From early youth Mr. Hirsch had been identified with the theatre, first as a box office man, and then as a manager. He began his career with the old Maplesson Opera Company in the Academy of Music on Fourteenth Street, and after serving later with the Standard Theatre and the old Abbey Theatre (now the Knickerbocker) as a supervisor of the ticket office, became affiliated with the Metropolitan. He continued here until 1910, when he was employed as manager of the Chicago Opera Company, a position which he filled for four years. Then followed a long period as road manager of the Pavlowa Troupe and other productions until his connection with the Music Box. Several years ago he was decorated by the French Government for his effciency in managing a French Government band in this country.

Mr. Hirsch was sixty-two years old, and lived at 2023 Voorhees Avenue, Sheepshead Bay. He was a member of the Friars' Club, The Lambs, the Treasurers' Club and the St. Cecile Lodge of Masons.

The funeral services were held on Sunday at the Temple Rodeph Shalom.

Among those attending the ceremonies were delegations from the Treasurers' Club of Philadelphia, the Treasurers' Club of New York, of which Mr. Hirsch was one of the founders, St. Cecile Lodge of Masons, the Friars' Club and The Lambs.

THE WATER ROUTE TO THE WEST

For those who this summer are intent upon seeing the glories of Jasper National Park, the Canadian Rockies or the Pacific Coast, travelling part of the way by water makes a delightful break in the long journey.

By rail to Sarnia—thence to Port Arthur aboard the luxurious steamers of the Northern Navigation Company, the traveller loses very little time and is amply repaid by the change of scene, cool lake breezes and social life aboard. There is dancing every evening, concerts, sing-songs and promenading, not to mention the quiet hours reclining in a comfortable deck chair with a book or magazine. The cuisine is excellent and the staterooms rival the comfort of the great ocean liners.

Any agent of the Canadian National Railways or Northern Navigation Company will gladly give full particulars or illustrated booklet.

For the convenience of those desiring information on summer resorts and vacation trips in general, the Public Library of Toronto, Reference Division, corner College and St. George Streets, maintains a complete supply of tourist literature published by railway and steamboat lines. The Travel Bureau is open daily except Sunday between the hours of 10 a.m. and 8 p.m.

EDITORIAL

What a multitude of problems and questions are created by this contract labour legislation can hardly be imagined at this writing. White men and women, European, children born in this country the prospect actually frightens. Men who are not citizens or aliens, neither immigrants nor denizens, subject to the whimsical caprice of men! What becomes of the theory of a country of laws and not men? What becomes of the equalitarian theory? To get but a faint picture of the abominations and miseries, a dip into the history of the indentured servant in the colonial period will suffice.

Must we, perforce, commit a more grievous sin against the wretched ones in Europe by passing such a monstrous piece of legislation? It were infinitely better that the present act be repealed in toto than the people of America be disgraced by an act which has offended every liberal sentiment of our people.

If this becomes a law, it is fair to ask, "What next?"

"Distant fields are greenest" does not always hold true, for Lake of Bays is close at hand and easy of access to residents of Ontario, and as a place of beauty or a holidaying spot of varied interests it is not excelled in Canada. For the Nature lover, Lake of Bays is truly edged with a thousand interesting bays, each with its own peculiar beauty, inviting close study and exploration. For those who prefer sport, the splendid summer hotels offer every facility for golf, tennis, boating and bathing, while Lake of Bays and adjoining lakes abound with trout, pickerel and bass that thrill the fisherman. Canadian National trains make excellent connections with steamboats which serve every part of the district. Complete information and literature may be had from any agent of the Canadian National Railways.

For the convenience of those desiring information on summer resorts and vacation trips in general, the Public Library of Toronto, Reference Division, corner College and St. George Streets, maintains a complete supply of tourist literature published by railway and steamboat lines. The Travel Bureau is open daily except Sunday between the hours of 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancour
That for what it cost me to be free
I might have had an anchor."

Ground was broken last week for the enlarged Yeshiva of America and the project to found the first Jewish university in this country is at last under way, thanks to the vision and zeal of Orthodox Jews in New York. At first the Yeshiva was to be a seminary for theological instruction, Jewish religious teachings and Hebraica, but with the inclusion of a college of liberal arts and sciences it will be a college or university. In establishing this institution the Jews are following the lead of other religious groups who have watched great universities develop from theological institutions. Princeton, for example, was once a school for Presbyterian ministers, Harvard for the Congregationalists, Brown for Baptists, and so on.

The Yeshiva will serve many purposes, not the least of which will be to absorb the surplus of students who now appear to many colleges in the east as a population problem. It will make group-conscious Jewish students happier in other universities because they know that they will have one of their own to go to if they prefer or if it is ever necessary for them to. Thousands of students who now try to efface their Jewishness in an effort to fit into some campus or other will have the opportunity to avail themselves of an environment where there is no reason to suspect the quality of sympathy. If the new college is anything like the present Yeshiva high school it will have a high standard and will attract many teachers of originality and personality who are not always recognized elsewhere for their real worth. The high school, with an enrollment of over 400, is ranked by the New York State Board of Regents as one of the leading secondary schools of the State with more graduates, proportionately, receiving scholarships in institutions of higher learning than from any other high school in New York.

The Yeshiva, now on East Broadway, which has been the Torah center of this country for forty years, will develop into a $5,000,000 college on Amsterdam Avenue between 186th and 188th Streets. Its high school will accommodate 2,500 and the dormitory will house 250. A second group of buildings will include the college and will have athletic grounds and a stadium nearby, overlooking the Haarlem River.

Before construction was begun, there was much discussion as to whether the Yeshiva should have general Jewish financial support in case it decided to teach secular, professional and technical subjects, and in fact the subject of whether America should have a Jewish university has been debated for years. In May, in a debate between the Bnai Brith Hillel Foundations of the University of Illinois and Wisconsin, the former won, advocating a Jewish university here.

Among the opponents to the project is the American Israelite of Cincinnati, which has feared that the establishment of a Jewish university would be a misfortune for American Jewry and "subversive of the principle of opposition to avoidable segregation of Jews from their Christian fellow-Americans." In its ardour to deny the Yeshiva support the Israelite enlisted the aid of Louis Marshall to say that unless the clerical and lay heads of the movement confine their labours within their legitimate sphere of a seminary for the teaching of Hebrew, et cetera, all financial aid should be cut off. The idea that the Yeshiva's new course was unwise, un-American and un-Jewish has had many adherents among Reform Jews, but there is still time to welcome the effort and to assist it or, at least not to obstruct what is certainly the makings of a good thing.

Rabbi Louis I Newman, head of the leading Reform congregation of San Francisco, Temple Emanu-El, once said that America should have a Jewish university in a suburb of New York, "open to all, regardless of race, colour or creed, teaching the humanities and professional subjects without sectarian or denominational colouring." As at present anticipated, the new university will be strict in ritual and observance of dietary laws and holy days, but it can also be modern in method, truly truth-seeking, and humane in spirit. In time it may approach more closely the ideal as expressed by Rabbi Newman, of being hospitable to all students, but even now it has gracious support from him as an individual. With equal enthusiasm from other leaders the Yeshiva can become anything great.

TEDDY HIMELSTEIN, WHO VANISHED EIGHT YEARS AGO, BACK AFTER SEEING WORLD

New York.—A frail boy of thirteen disappeared eight years ago from his home, No. 35 Rutgers Street, and set the whole country hunting him. Last Sunday night the boy returned to his family after years of adventuring on the seas and continents of the world.

When Mrs. Ida Himelstein, surrounded by her five children, sat at the dinner table Sunday, a big, husky young man entered.

"Does Mrs. Ida Himelstein live here?", the stranger asked.

"I am Mrs. Himelstein. What do you want?"

"Why, I'm Teddy, your son," the stranger answered.

Mrs. Himelstein, a tiny woman, rushed forward, kissed him and fainted. When she was revived the brothers and sisters cleared a place at the family table for the lost brother, who thereupon began his saga or adventures. Fisrt they told him that his father had died four months after his disappearance.

He explained that Rutgers Street bored him eight years ago. After loafing a month on the streets after graduation from school he decided to run away to see the world.

In August of 1917 he slipped away. Several months later he shipped to sea as a cabin boy.

Then he enlisted in the navy and visited France, Cuba, China, Japan, the Near East, Honolulu, British West Indies, Mexico, Chili, the Argentine, Africa, Australia and Brazil.

To celebrate the return, Mrs. Himelstein promised yesterday to give the biggest and best party for all of Madison Street next week.

KEREN HAYESOD AIDING MIDDLE CLASS IMMIGRANTS TO COLONIZE

A report from Palestine, made public by the headquarters of the American Keren Hayesod, describes steps undertaken by the Palestine Zionist Executive for the purpose of facilitating the colonization of middle class immigrants who have formed a large part of the recent immigration, and most of whom have for the time being settled in Tel Aviv. The Agricultural Colonization Department of the Executive has established an information bureau in that city designed to meet the specific needs of the middle class immigrants and to make it unnecessary for them to travel for information to the office in Jerusalem.

A special committee of representatives of the Jewish Farmers' Association and of a representative of the Agricultural Department has been set up to supervise the information service of the Bureau. Frequent meetings are held to sift the material. The Bureau has collected information with regard to the possibilities of settlement in the existing colonies, the capacity for absorption of the various agricultural occupations, the different colonization programmes, etc.

Prof. Freud Heads Psycho-Analytical Foundation

New York. - Professor Sigmund Freud, originator of psychoanalysis, has accepted the chairmanship of the International Psychoanalytical Foundation being organized by his friends in New York City, it was announced this week. The organization will be devoted to the furtherance of true psychological knowledge along Freudian lines and to combating the fake psychoanalysis now said to be rampant in the United States. Funds for this purpose are now bring raised.

In a letter to Edward L. Bernais, of New York, who is now in Vienna, to discuss the foundation with Dr. Freud, the latter accepts the offer of the chairmanship and expresses satisfaction over the scheme. He says, however, that he does not desire to assume all responsibility, and suggests that a governing committee be appointed of equal numbers of Europeans and Americans. The letter, which, by the way, is the first statement signed by Dr. Freud to be issued to the press in many years, continues:

"Such a foundation, in my opinion, would have three purposes:

"First, the maintenance and enlargement of the existing psychoanalytical institutions at Berlin and Vienna as both clinical and educational institutions, completing the education of physicians in psychoanalysis and making psychoanalytical treatment available to people without means. I hope closer acquaintance with these institutions will induce Americans to create similar ones in their own country and thus put an end to the frequent misuse of psychoanalysis there.

"The second purpose is the maintenance of a psychoanalytic press, publishing all our literature.

"The third purpose is the carrying out of a publicity campaign which, with earnest, decent methods, will disseminate the true character and value of psychoanalysis."

The European half of the governing committee of the foundation consists of Dr. Eitingen, founder of the Berlin Polyclinic, Dr. Alexander Ferenczi, the Hungarian psychoanalyst, Dr. Karl Abraham, president of the International Psychoanalytic Association, and Joseph Storfer.

Dr. Tannenbaum Criticises Clinic

The proposed International Psychoanalytical Foundation, of which Dr. Sigmund Freud, of Vienna, originator of psychoanalysis, is to be the head, was criticised as more likely to promote than to discourage quackery, in a statement made public on Sunday by Dr. Samuel A. Tannenbaum, of 3681 Broadway, author of many articles on psychoanalysis. He said that while successful analysts would permit the use of their names on the stationery of the foundation, they would probably relegate the actual treatment of patients to incompetent amateurs, and that the havoc these subordinates would work among neurotics would be "incalculable."

"Such a clinic would also undoubtedly permit non-medical analysts to treat nervous patients," Dr. Tannenbaum said, "inasmuch as Freud himself has indorsed non-medical psychoanalysts. This would tremendously encourage quackery, of which we already have too much in this country."

YESHIVA OFFERS COURSES IN SUMMER SCHOOL

New York.—Courses in Jewish history and literature, including the study of ancient Hebrew sects, are the features of the summer school recently opened by the Teachers' Institute of the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary (the Yeshiva). The seminary, now located at 301 East Broadway, is to be enlarged into the Yeshiva of America, for which a fund of $5,000,000 is now being raised to erect a series of buildings on three city blocks on Amsterdam Avenue, between 186th and 188th Streets.

The summer school, which is directed by Dr. Pinkhos Churgin, widely known as an authority on Jewish history and literature, is attended by Hebrew teachers, all of whom are graduates of the Seminary Teachers' Institute. Most of the students are working for the degree of doctor of Hebrew literature which will be awarded by the Seminary upon the completion of the prescribed four years' course. Under the present plan, which requires of the student three hours weekly during the winter and nine hours weekly through the summer, the institute enables the individual to continue his teaching work at the same time that he completes the additional courses necessary to receive his doctor's degree.

"The need for Jewish teachers has reached a critical stage, both in this country and Europe," commented Dr. Churgin. "America can no longer look to Europe for its Hebrew scholars, because economic conditions there do not permit the young men to enter into the intense study which is demanded of the Hebrew teacher. It is for this reason that our institute initiated the summer school."

Dr. A. A. Michelson, the scientist, has practically recovered from a serious illness. For several days it threatened to prevent completion of experiments with light in connection with which he went to Pasadena several weeks ago.

A group of Austrian anti-Semitic students, mostly members of the Swatika Organization invaded the hall in which the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom were in conclave, at Innsbruck. Here these ruffians broke into demonstration upon hearing Mrs. Lewis, an American delegate, plead for the necessity of racial peace. Police intervention restored order.

Washing your most precious possessions with Lux is just as easy as washing your hands. The filmy Lux particles melt instantly into a rich foam of almost magic cleansing power, yet gentle to the frailest fabric.

For all dainty things that have to be washed often—as well as all valuable things that have to be washed seldom and with the greatest care rely on Lux. Remember, it won't shrink woollens, nor will it harm a single silken thread. And Lux is just as mild on your hands as the finest toilet soap—in fact it benefits them.

Toss Lux into very hot water and whip into lather.

Add cold water until easily bearable to the hands.

Dip repeatedly in this pure, rich lather. Do not rub.

JEWISH COLONISTS IN THE ARGENTINE

The most pressing problem that confronts now the Jewish colonists in the Argentine, most of whom are settled on land belonging to the Jewish Colonization Association (ICA), is how to keep the growing generation attached to the soil. The main causes of the defection of the sons of the colonists from the farms, as was brought out by the president of the organization of the Jewish colonists, which was held recently at Buenos Aires, are the need of cultural education and social recreation which the young generation lacks in the colonies, and the lack of land on which to settle the young men. The second cause, according to the president, Mr. Wortman, was the chief reason given by the young men for abandoning the colonies. Many of them go to the cities and engage in business or in trade. Among the resolutions adopted at that convention was one which aims at the establishment of a fund, similar to the Jewish National Fund, to which every colonist would contribute annually the sum of ten pesos. This fund will be used for the purpose of buying land on which to settle on easy terms the sons of colonists who are otherwise unable to secure land.

In the report of the ICA recently published, it is indicated that in the Province of Entre Rios, the installation of the sons of the colonists is either in partnership with their parents, who give the sons 125 acres of their own holdings, or, sometimes the parents, having now reached mature years, simply hand over their holding to their children. During the current year, fifty such partnerships between parents and their sons have been effected. The economic situation in the towns is not very satisfactory and, as a consequence, a number of Jewish townsmen have asked to be placed on the colonies. Twenty-two out of thirty-six families who have applied have been placed upon small holdings, where they will be tested to see if they are capable of undertaking farming on a large scale. During the first quarter of 1925 the ICA has definitely installed eighty-eight colonies on small holdings, twenty on grazing farms, and ten more on market garden lots, making a total of one hundred and eighteen families and of these ninety two have taken over their holding without calling on the ICA for any advance of any kind. The village formed at the centre of these groups are steadily growing.

The colonists have decided to form a federation of all Jewish farmers in the Argentine, including not only the ICA colonists, but all the other Jewish colonists as well. It is expected that such an organization will be of great benefit to the farmers and also greatly strengthen the position of the growing Jewish community in the Argentine.

The Argentine Government is giving every assistance to the work of the ICA and is willing to open its gates for the reception of additional immigrants whom the ICA would be willing to place on land there. Recently the agent of the ICA, with the approval of the Argentine consul at Southampton, selected twenty emigrants from among the 500 who have been stranded there for some time, and sent them off to Argentine to be provided for on the ICA colonies there.

The situation in Brazil is much less satisfactory. In December, 1924, due to political troubles, the Jewish colony there was attacked by a band of robbers and in the skirmish, one Jew was assassinated and another seriously wounded, which caused the inhabitants to abandon their farms. Although the situation subsequently improved and the colonists returned to their holdings, conditions do not warrant the extension of the work there at present.

Hindenburg and the Jews

New German President Knows Jewish Life Intimately and Will Not Foster Anti-Semitic Movement in Germany

By AV AMARIA

(Hindenburg's election to the presidency of the German Republic has aroused a storm of protests in every corner of the globe. What may the German Jew expect from the new Field-Marshal President? Will anti-Semitism be strengthened? Will anti-Jewish junkerism flourish? The writer of this article bases his views on intimate knowledge of the new President's past reactions to Jewish life.—The Editor.)

The election of Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg to the presidency of the German Republic is being considered in many Jewish circles in America and Europe as a victory for the anti-Semites. It is true that Hindenburg is monarchistically inclined, but the fear expressed in the Jewish press that he might foster the cause of anti-Semites is totally unfounded. Hindenburg is neither anti nor philo-Semitic. He is totally indifferent to the Jews and the Jewish problem. He has never uttered a word that would indicate his hostility to the Jews, but he has expressed himself at various times in a fashion that would indicate his lack of prejudice against Jews.

The only way in which to evaluate Hindenburg's attitude toward the Jew is to review his past utterances and actions with regard to the Jews. Before the outbreak of the World War, Hindenburg had but slight opportunity to meet Jews, much less to express an opinion of them. Being in service as a Prussian officer, he was subject to the rules and code of his clique. Prussian officers of the old school did not, as a rule, speak of politics. They were not allowed to participate in any political activities, nor were they allowed to express opinions on political subjects.

The average Prussian officer was not favourably inclined towards the Jew, because anti-Semitism was a tradition with the Prussian army. Although legally a German Jew had the right to join the officers' corps and upon exhibition of merit could be promoted, yet in practice the Jew was excluded from the body of officers. He was not even permitted to become a sub-lieutenant because the officers of the Prussian army would not tolerate a Jewish fellow-officer in their midst. A Jew could not even attain the rank of a non-commissioned officer, unless he was a physician or an engineer. Many a time the leaders of the liberal parties in the Reichstag criticized the government for curtailing the constitutional rights of the Jews, by not permitting them to enter upon a military career, but every time the spokesman for the government replied, he declared that the Minister of War could not combat the entire body of officers; the officers of the Prussian army were against the Jews.

It can thus be taken for granted that Hindenburg, to an extent, shared the views of his fellow-officers with regard to the Jew. It is also possible that the problem never confronted him, and he had no opportunity of declaring himself on the subject.

But soon after the war declaration against Russia, he, probably for the first time in his life, had to face the problem of the Jew, for he knew that the first battles between Teuton and Slav would take place in the Jewish pale. Hindenburg and Ludendorf were in charge of "Commando Ost" (eastern front), and both came to the speedy realization of the fact that unless they evidenced a friendly attitude to the Jews of the pale, the invading army would meet with great difficulties. A few days after the firing of the first shot on the eastern front, Hindenburg and Ludendorf signed a manifesto addressed to the Jews living on the Russian borderland, which declared that the Germans were coming to deliver the Jews from the Russian yoke. The manifesto was couched in the most friendly terms, and German airmen distributed millions of copies.

Considering the hostile attitude that the Russian army leaders had adopted toward the Jews, Hindenburg's manifesto made the desired impression. The more the Russian military chieftains harassed the Jews, the louder was the Jewish praise of Hindenburg as a Messiah and redeemer. But this manifesto cannot be taken as an absolute token of friendliness towards the Jews. Hindenburg needed Jewish friendship and he tried to obtain it.

The real test of Hindenburg's attitude came after the German armies had taken the Russian borderland, Poland, Lithuania, part of Ukrainia, and the Baltic provinces. Hindenburg, who remained at the head of "Commando Ost," was faced with the alternative of treating the Jews as vanquished enemies or as friends. He decided upon the latter course. He determined to recognize Jewish life from its very foundations. To this end, he called upon one of the ablest German rabbis, Sonderling, Chief Rabbi of Hamburg (now head of the conservative rabbinate of Chicago), who was to aid him in the execution of his plans. Hindenburg also summoned another leading rabbi, Dr. Levy, and to both of these men the German commandant intrusted the administration of Jewish affairs in the occupied regions. Under their supervision an entirely new educational system was inaugurated. The Yeshiboth, and notably the famous Slobodko Yeshiba, were opened in the presence of a representative from Hindenburg. These institutions were placed on a secure financial basis. Hindenburg told Dr. Sondeling that he must do his very best to foster and further the cause of Jewish education, in order to prevent the demoralization of Jewish youth. Hindenburg did next to nothing for the education of the Lithuanian youth, but he did everything possible for the development of a sound Jewish school system. Even those Jews in western lands, and especially in America, who considered a Russian victory preferable to a German one, had to admit that Hindenburg succeeded in bringing some order into the chaos into which eastern Jewry had been plunged after two years of war.

In addition Hindenburg, with the help of expert organizers, placed the Jewish communities in the occupied regions on a sound basis. He established authority wherever it was lacking; he reintroduced discipline into Jewish life, and, according to Sonderling, he displayed not only a deep interest in the Jewish problems, but also a keen understanding for their solution. Ludendorf, who was the co-signer of the famous manifesto, never took an interest in Jewish affairs, after the Russian borderlands were seized. It is true that during military operations in the East, Ludendorf showered iron crosses upon Jewish soldiers, and sang their praises. But as soon as the war was terminated, he placed himself at the head of the anti-Semitic party in Germany. Hindenburg has done nothing of the sort. He has never showered iron crosses upon Jewish soldiers, but, on the other hand, he has never uttered a word that could be interpreted as anti-Semitic. That constitutes the difference between Hindenburg and Ludendorf.

Hindenburg may not be a brilliant man politically, but he is a settled man, a conservative person, and not apt to vacillate in his views. While at the head of the eastern division, he became familiar with Jewish life and Jewish problems, and has displayed a considerable interest in all matters Jewish. Since the end of the war, he retired to Hanover, from where he has never said or done anything that would make the Jews believe that he is their enemy.

Hindenburg is not a philo-Semite; but neither is he an anti-Semite. He is an old soldier and a strict disciplinarian; he is thus for law and order. By temperament Hindenburg is a peace-loving man, paradoxical though this may sound. And we have no right to assume that under Hindenburg's regime, anti-Semitism in Germany will assume still greater proportions.

It is interesting to note that old Hindenburg has at times given his views on Jewish problems, because for more than four years he was in intimate contact with Jewish life. A deputation of Lithuanian Jews while discussing local, Jewish problems with Hindenburg, happened to say a few words about Zionism. The old man listened attentively, and then remarked that it was up to the Jewish people, and, of course, to the other side (meaning the Entente). "It is primarily an internal Jewish problem. If a people is God-fearing and serious-minded, it can attain its goal, but there must be unity first and above everything else." He also advised the Jews in the East to cultivate the study of the Bible more.

How Many Cents in a Dollar ?

The answer to this question depends largely upon the wisdom with which the dollar is used.

The dollar spent carelessly may therefore have only half the cents of a dollar that is spent judiciously.

The purchasing power of dollars is enlarged to-day by shoppers who carefully observe newspaper advertisements.

The most dependable goods and the most attractive bargains are being advertised for the benefit of judicious buyers — those who want their dollars to have the most cents.

REMEMBER:

Inferior merchandise is seldom advertised.

The best merchandise is always advertised.
